Brutally Murdered.

A Colored Coachman Kills His Employer.

THE BODY THROWN IN A SEWER.

The Murderer Attempts to Leave the Scene of His Crime But is Captured, Brought Back and Makes a Full Confession—He is Then Locked Up to Await His Trial.

CINCINNATI, July 29.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Col. A. E. Jones, surgeon general of Ohio on Governor Foraker's staff, from his home on Walnut Hills, last Thursday, was solved Saturday morning by the finding of his body in a man hole of the sewer at the corner of Park avenue and Cypress street. The man had been brutally murdered, his body tied up in a sack and thrown into the sewer.

Within twelve hours after the discovery of the body of the aged physician the murderer was captured by police headquarter detectives, locked up in a cell, and a full confession obtained of him. The murderer was Charles Blythe. He is 29 years old. Blythe had been employed by Col. Jones three months ago as a coachman, gardener and man-of-all-work. Blythe murdered Col. Jones Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the colonel's stable. Blythe had been ordered to weed the garden. He did not do the work as promptly as Col. Jones desired. Col. Jones went to the stable Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock to admonish him.

Blythe says Col. Jones struck him with a light oaken staff. He admits the blow was a light one, and did not hurt him at all. He confessed that after Col. Jones struck him he went to the rear of the stable, picked up a heavy oaken stick, "about as size of my wrist;" he described it, "an" struck the colonel on the head while his back was towards me." The murderer, as he confessed, then procured a sack, which was hanging on a tree near by, pulled the mouth of the sack over the head of the murdered man, and then "de colonel drew up his legs into the sack, and I didn't have to crowd him in. I didn't have to bend him at all. He jes pulled up his legs when the sack reached his middle, and dey went in widout any trouble at all."

This was the story the murderer told: It means that Col. Jones was still alive, when, bleeding from the blow on the head, the young murderer pulled a sack over the body. After the body was placed in the sack Blythe hid it until dark. Then he bound about the sack, with its bleeding corpse, leather thongs that he found in the stable. When night had fallen and the hill were deserted and silent, the murderer picked up his burden, lifted it to his shoulder, sneaked out the side street into the dark, and all unobserved reached the sewer, the cover of which he lifted, and then dropped the sack into the dark hole, at the bottom of which he says he could hear the waters rushing downward to the river.

Then the murderer realized that murders may be committed, but they cannot be concealed. After the sack had been dropped into the sewer Blythe returned to Col. Jones' house. Then he went home. "I went to bed," he said, "but I couldn't sleep at all, and I got up before the sun was up. I couldn't sleep because I couldn't forget what I'd gone and done." The next morning the murderer went to the home of Col. Jones. Col. Jones' family had not yet realized that the father had been murdered. All that day, while the body of the old man was lying in the sewer, they searched for him.

All the day the murderer was in and about the house. A dozen times that day he had been tearfully asked by the aged wife, the sons and daughters, if he had heard anything about Col. Jones' whereabouts. Knowing that the old man would never again come back to the house the murderer lied coolly and persistently. "I haven't seen de colonel," he said. "I haven't heard anything about him," he answered. That night, Friday, he went home late, and went to bed. "I couldn't sleep," he said, "and Sat rday mornin' I got up early, and went down to Col. Jones' house. I packed up my things. Mrs. Jones and Miss Jones asked me if I'd heard anything. I told 'em I hadn't. Then I went away."

This, in brief, was the murderer's story. Blythe, with his valise in hand, went to the Columbia station of the narrow gauge railway, purchased a ticket to Madisonville, got on the train, was frightened, got off the train, walked around the station, and when he came back the train was gone. The murderer then walked to Madisonville. The operator at Columbia had read a description of Blythe, and when he observed the strange actions of Blythe he telegraphed Madisonville to look out for him, and then telegraphed Col. Deitsch. Col. Deitsch at once sent Detectives Moses and Schmucks to Madisonville.

At Madisonville Sheriff Spence Dawson and the detectives soon located the murderer at a house on Moore street in Madisonville. Blythe was playing cards. Gen. W. B. Shuttie, Capt. Spence Dawson, Mr. E. G. Edgeley and Mr. A. Klein, who were informed of the murderer's location, surrounded the house. The detectives entered and captured the murderer, and he was brought back to the city. After he had been examined by Col. Deitsch and a full confession of the crime had been obtained from him, he was locked up in a cell at police headquarters.

Blythe is a sullen-looking negro. He has big eyes and is very nearly black. He has thick lips, with a slanting forehead, and has the general appearance of a bad man.

The deceased having ranked as a brigadier general, he would be entitled under the United States army regulations to a funeral escort of a troop of cavalry, a regiment and a platoon of artillery. There being but one cavalry troop in Ohio, and that at Cleveland, it is not likely to be ordered out. At any rate that part of the Ohio National Guards stationed in this city will take part in the funeral services.

There was a report that the family would prefer to have the funeral as quiet as possible.

The prevailing expression was that the military escort be given no matter what the family desired, as he was in the service of the state. It was decided that the officers notify their men to hold themselves in readiness to attend the funeral on Tuesday.

WHERE IS THE THETIS?

A Vessel Now Three Weeks Overdue From Gibraltar.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—Several of the large marine insurance companies in this city, are greatly concerned over a $350,000 risk, recently taken on a cargo of sugar on board the steamship Thetis, at the Philippine islands, bound to Sandy Hook for orders. A large part of the cargo had been sold to be delivered to Philadelphia refineries. The Thetis was a new Clyde build vessel, and is known as an "ocean tramp."

The sailed from Iloilo for one of the ports in the Philippine islands, with her cargo on April 26. The insurance of the cargo was effected in this city after the ship's departure from Iloilo.

She passed Gibraltar on June 24, since when nothing has been heard from her. The passage should not have taken more than fourteen days, and it is now thirty-three days since she passed out of the signal station at Gibraltar. Should the ship have been lost the disaster will be one of the most important recorded among freight vessels in recent years. The value of the ship and cargo is nearly $500,000. The vessel is new one, and is rated as 100 A 1 at Lloyd's, and cost $120,000. The Thetis was commanded by Capt. Cameren, and her crew consisted of forty men. It is feared that Capt. Cameren ran a course too far north and has struck an iceberg and been lost with all of his crew.

HEY GEORGE BACK.

He Expresses Himself Well Pleased With His Trip Abroad.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Henry George arrived by yesterday's steamer and in an interview last night expressed himself as greatly pleased with the results of his tour abroad. He says his views as to the taxation of land values are much more widely accepted in England now than they were when he was in that country several years ago. Members of parliament, leading business men and clergymen were chairmen of the meetings he addressed, and great interest seemed to be taken among all classes in the single tax question.

Dr. Thackeray, of the university of Cambridge, had come out in favor of the single tax and written a book called "Land and the community," for which Mr. George had written a preface.

On his arrival here yesterday Mr. George was met by about 200 single tax friends and escorted to his home. A banquet will be tendered him this evening at the Brighton Beach hotel.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

Five Men Killed While Excavating Limestone.

WABASH, Ind., July 29.—News has just reached here of a terrific explosion of dynamite, twelve miles west of this city, on the Wabash railway, in which five men lost their lives and others were injured.

The men are said to have been at work excavating in the limestone rock for proposed improvements on the railroad when the dynamite, which had been brought thither for blasting purposes was accidentally exploded, wrecking the buildings in which the men had gathered for shelter from the storm, and instantly killing five workmen. No particulars as to the rumored disaster are at this time attainable.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE KILLED.

A Cyclone Sweeps Over a Large Portion of Hungary.

VIENNA, July 29.—A terrific cyclone swept over portions of Hungary, Transylvania and Bukovina yesterday, taking in a tract several thousand square miles in extent in its pathway.

The ruin wrought by this visitation is terrible. Hundreds of people have been killed and a great many more have been maimed and crippled. All crops in the path of the cyclone are a total loss and houses and churches are leveled to the ground in all directions.

A Riotous Demonstration.

STREATOR, Ill., July 29.—The mine of the Star Coal company, located at Kangley, two miles northwest of Streator, was the scene of a riotous demonstration Saturday evening. The company has been making great efforts to work their mine, and about fifty have been at work for the past week. Saturday night a large crowd of men and women surrounded the shaft and prevented the men from coming up for about two hours. A number of deputy sheriffs were sent over, and everything is now quiet, although trouble may yet result if the attempt to run the mine is persisted in.

Boats Run Together.

BALTIMORE, July 29.—The steamer W. Whildin, Capt. W. F. Foster, of Baltimore, ran into and sunk the schooner Rillie S. Derby, of Philadelphia, Capt. Thomas Naylor, in the Delaware bay, off Listone Point, at 3:20 o'clock Sunday morning. The Whildin was on her way to Cape May with sixty excursionists. The Derby was coal laden, bound for Newburyport, Mass. No one was hurt.

Storm Disasters.

Eight People Killed and Others Injured

BY A FALLING BUILDING.

An Unprecedented Storm Visits Chicago, Doing a Vast Amount of Damage—A Rainfall Unprecedented, Basements Flooded, Windows Shattered and Trees Uprooted.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The storm which swept across the prairies and struck Chicago Saturday night was without a parallel in the history of this section of the country. The records of the local signal service show nothing approaching Saturday night's deluge. From 6:30 to 9:30 4.12 inches of rain fell. Without going into figures, it may be stated that the volume of water which fell inside of the city limits would make a lake on which could be floated the greatest navy in the world.

It is impossible to estimate the damage with any degree of accuracy. Hardly a house in the city escaped the fury of the storm. Buildings were blown down, basements flooded, plate glass windows shattered and valuable shade trees uprooted or broken by the fury of the gale. It is safe to say that the loss will reach into the hundreds of thousands.

Eight Lives Lost.

During the storm an unoccupied three story brick building, at the corner of Oakley avenue and Twenty-first street, was blown over on an adjoining cottage, completely crushing the latter, instantly killing eight and seriously injuring three of its occupants. Two families were living in the cottage, the front part being occupied by Cornelius Ferdinand, a blacksmith, with his wife and four children, and the rear by Charles Buck, a laborer, his wife and three children. The wrecked cottage caught fire from the overturned stoves in it, but the flames were soon extinguished and the work of rescue began.

Charles Buck, who lived in the rear, was found pinned down by heavy timbers. He was terribly injured about the head, face and chest, but may recover. His wife was found dead, crushed beyond all recognition. Gustaf, his oldest son, aged 13, was fastened under a heavy beam. His right leg was broken and his skull fractured. He was taken to the hospital, and cannot survive his injuries. Anna Buck, aged 8, and Albert, aged 6, were crushed to death.

C. Ferdinand was found crushed to death in his doorway. His wife was lying near him with their 2-year-old babe, Cora, clasped in her arms. The mother was dead, but the child was rescued alive and taken to the county hospital, where it died at midnight. Linda Ferdinand, aged 10, was found struggling and screaming. She had attempted to escape through a rear door and was crushed about the chest and both legs. She may recover. Geneva Ferdinand, aged 13, and Gertrude, aged 6, were imprisoned in the wreck until after midnight when they were rescued, but it is hardly possible for either to survive.

Another Similar Accident.

A brick building in the course of construction at the northeast corner of Oakley avenue and Twenty-first street, not far from the Leavitt street disaster, was blown down during the storm on a cottage in the rear, but fortunately none of the occupants were killed. The families of W. H. Keefe, the owner of the building, and John Hayes occupied the cottage. The only persons seriously hurt was a little girl of 13 years, who received a cut two inches long across the side of her head, and a boy whose spine was injured. Neither of their wounds is necessarily fatal.

Boy Killed by Lightning.

Charles Shaffer, a boy 6 years old, who lived with his parents at 3233 Yorktown street, was killed by lightning during the storm. He was sitting by the fire place at his home when lightning struck the house and going down the chimney killed the lad instantly.

The house was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. Other members of the family were considerably shocked.

The Colsons' Record.
It is an old saying that a fellow must not run for office if he doesn't want his own record and that of his family shown up.

When Mr. David G. Colson was nominated for State Treasurer a few weeks ago by the Kentucky Republicans their party papers were filled with glowing editorials, telling what a nice young man he is. These Republican editors may have been honest-hearted in what they said, and may have believed all they wrote to be the truth and all that, but in the light of later developments it seems they are all badly mistaken in their man. Their nominee, Mr. David G. Colson, belongs to a family that has done much to bring disgrace and odium upon the State by reason of the feuds, brawls and killings in which several of the sons have figured as prominent actors. At least that is the case, if the story told by a Pineville correspondent of the Courier-Journal is true. Inasmuch as Mr. Colson is a candidate for State Treasurer, it is well for the people to know something about him. We copy from the Covington Commonwealth. It says: "A Pineville correspondent of the Courier-Journal throw some light on the Colson family, who reside at Middleboro, twelve miles from that place. It is mighty interesting reading for the party which pretends to have corralled all the high moral ideas and law and order sentiment of the State. It seems that they (the Colsons) have all been more or less implicated in the lawlessness and murder that has prevailed in that section, and most of them have killed their man, going in pairs to attack him, two to one.

"Speaking of the arrest of 'Gen.' Sowders, a noted desperado and murderer of that section, the correspondent says:

When 'Gen.' Sowders was arrested by Alvis Turner and some of his side, Dave Colson did not want to wait for the law, but was bent upon releasing him, and for some time it was thought that Colson had organized a rescuing party, and was only waiting for a favorable time to attack Sowders' prison and give his release to the leader of the Sowders faction. Dave Colson was most bitterly partisan of Sowders, and when the leader was arrested by Alvis Turner and some of his people, Colson declared himself in readiness to join a crowd to capture Sowders' captors and hang them.

"We make some further extracts from this historical sketch:

The Colson family has always lived in Bell County, and no other set of men has done more or aided more in making Bell County a blot and a disgrace to the fair name of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. As murderers or refugees, the Colsons have done their part well, and to them, as much as to the Sowders, the Turners and the Hendricks, does the credit for the brawling, outlawry and bloody murdering reputation of Bell County belongs.

The older Colson was a man of some business ability, who was no better nor no worse than his neighbors. Until he reared a set of boys, the family name had not become prominent in that section. Murders and feuds and killings gave the Colsons notoriety, and now everybody in that section is afraid to speak, even in whispers of the deeds of the Colsons. Of the brothers, six are old enough to have become implicated in the brawls and killings and the feuds of Bell County, and these six are James Colson, 'Red' Colson, John Colson, Gil Colson, David G. Colson and George Colson.

"Red" and James Colson killed a crippled Confederate soldier at Cumberland Gap, and a year after 'Red' and his partner, Alf McAtee, assassinated Joseph and Robert Pearce, both married and leaving widows and houses full of children. Says the correspondent:

Even for Bell County this crime was regarded as assassination, and things were made so warm for the murderers that they were obliged to flee the country when they were indicted. Both men went to Texas, and there Colson is now living away from his grown-up family, and with never an effort made to return.

Another brother, George Colson, followed 'Red's' example, murdered his man (a constable) and fled to Texas, where he died recently away from home and friends.

The correspondent further states that Gil Colson as County School Superintendent has been "indicted for wrongfully obtaining the funds of the schools," and that:

He has been frequently sued by the ill-paid and hard-working teachers for withholding their salaries and putting the money to his own uses, and there are any number of unsatisfied judgments against him brought by these teachers."

And the Republicans ask the people of Kentucky to honor this family by electing one of the sons State Treasurer.

If Kentucky Republicans can't find any better family than the Colsons to honor with the offices, they should quit business.

The regular August election will take place a week from to-day. Frazee, Poyntz, Sharp and the constitutional convention should receive a big majority in Mason. Every Democratic vote should be polled.

KENTUCKY Republicans had a good deal of trouble to find some one to run for State Treasurer, and in the light of recent developments it would have been much better for them to have made no nomination at all.

ROSENTHAU BROTHERS,

PROPRIETORS BEE HIVE, SUTTON STREET, TWO DOORS FROM SECOND.

THE Joliet (Ill.) Press says the Joliet rolling mills subscribed $24,000 to Mr. Quay's campaign fund last year. Recently the company made a 12 per cent. reduction in the wages of its employees, "by which," says the Press, "they will recover $15,000 of that sum." So the fellows who are getting "practically the sole benefit of the tariff laws," are very generally making the workmen pay their campaign contributions.

THE Greenup Gazette says there are a hundred thousand voters in Kentucky who can neither read nor write. We will wager the price of a hat that ninety-eight thousand of them vote the Democratic ticket. Ten years of Republican rule in Kentucky and there would be ninety-five per cent. less illiteracy than there now is. Governor Foraker would straighten them out in less time. --Portsmouth Blade.

You would lose your hat. The Republican counties in Kentucky are not only the pauper counties, but they are the sections where the greatest illiteracy prevails. It is such lies and misrepresentations as the above that the Blade and other Republican papers of its class take delight in telling about Kentucky Democrats.

The Policy of the Republican Party. [Speaker Carlisle in the August Forum.] To tax the people heavily for the purposes of perpetuating this restrictive Republican policy, and then to use the revenue derived from such taxation to subsidize corporations engaged in the foreign carrying trade, is manifestly so absurd and unjust that it cannot be defended upon any rational ground except that of a generous disposition upon the part of members of Congress to give away other people's money. Yet this is just what the Republican party now proposes to do, and Senator Morrill proclaims it without seeming to be aware of the absurdity of taxing imports to keep them out and then paying the carrier a bounty to bring them in. In its frantic efforts to re-establish itself in power, the Republican party bid high for the support of every dissatisfied element and every mendicant enterprise in the country, and the account must now be settled, no matter how illogical and absurd the proceeding may be.

THE appointment of Mr. Thomas Forman to be Storekeeper and Gauger in this revenue district is in a list announced by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue Friday.

SHOOTING AT ABERDEEN

Roe Sutton Rather Seriously Wounded While Resisting Arrest—The Particulars.

Aberdeen was all torn up with excitement late yesterday afternoon over the shooting and wounding of Roe Sutton and the incidents that led up to the affair.

Sutton is quiet and peaceable enough when not drinking, but when under the influence of liquor he has the reputation of being a rather quarrelsome and dangerous man. At least such is the BULLETIN's information.

He was drinking yesterday and late in the afternoon attempted to shoot his wife. He fired once at her, but fortunately she escaped any harm. He then left the house, and went to the livery stable near the hotel, where he shot at D. M. King, who is Marshal of the town. Shortly afterwards he returned to his home.

Marshal King then started to arrest Sutton. The officer was accompanied by Bayless Farley as Deputy. Each had armed himself, the Marshal having a double-barrel shotgun that he had borrowed from "Buckskin Jim," while Deputy Farley had a pistol. The gun was loaded with bird-shot. Sutton was found on the porch at his home. The officers called to him to surrender, but instead of doing so he drew his pistol, and the weapons of all three cracked about the same instant. Sutton fell and it was thought for a few minutes that he had received a fatal wound. One charge of the bird-shot had struck him on the forehead, and had almost torn off his scalp. Investigation afterwards showed that the shot was a glancing one, and it is thought that no vital part was penetrated. A few scattering shot had struck him about the face. The shooting was done at close range and his escape from instant death was a narrow one. He recovered consciousness shortly afterwards and although he had bled profusely it required three or four men to overpower him and place him under control. His wounds were dressed by Dr. Heaton. This morning he was doing as well as could be expected.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach, and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

The Boss Commandery.

The Maysville Commandery K. T., No. 10, put through the largest class in the Red Cross, on Thursday last, ever before in Kentucky—twenty-four in number. This 5-15-22 Commandery is the largest in the West. They will show up at Washington, in September, in great shape. They engaged quarters more than a year ahead, at the Arlington Hotel—Lexington Drummer.

An Alleged Rapist Arrested.

George Powell, colored, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Marshal Heflin at Third and Limestone streets and lodged in the station house as a fugitive from justice. Powell is wanted in Bath County on a serious charge. He is accused of outraging the person of a young colored girl. The crime was committed last April. Powell escaped at the time and has been at large ever since. Some time after he left Bath it was reported there that he had been killed on a boat, and officers of that county abandoned the case, believing the report true. Powell is a six-footer, about thirty years old and is considered a "bad nigger." He told Marshal Heflin he would get even with some fellows up in Bath if he ever got free.

KENTUCKY CROPS.

What the State Weather Service Has to Say of the Outlook. News for the Farmers

The Weekly Crop Bulletin of the Kentucky State Weather Service in co-operation with the U. S. Signal Service for the week ending Saturday, July 27th, says that during the past week a nearly normal temperature has prevailed, with a slight deficiency of sunshine. Rains have been quite general throughout the State, but were very unevenly distributed. The northern and eastern portions show a considerable excess, while in the southern and western portions a deficiency is reported. The amount in all sections, however, has been amply sufficient for the growth of crops.

During the week the oat harvest was about completed, and the yield is generally reported to be fair. The threshing of wheat is still progressing, and the grain is reported to be much better than anticipated. Some complaint is made that the grain is sprouting in the shock in districts where heavy rains have fallen. Tobacco, corn and hemp are progressing finely. The indications are that the corn crop will be unprecedentedly large. The only detriment to its growth is the presence of weeds and grass in the fields, and which cannot be plowed out owing to the damp soil. The high winds of the 26th blew down some corn but did not permanently injure it. The prospect for fruit and late garden vegetables continue excellent.

The first six months of 1889, as compared with the same period of 1888, show a decrease of $282,293 in net earnings.

There is no road in the country which is financially cleaner than the C. & O. It has no floating debt of any kind. The acquisition of the road by the Vanderbilts leaves but three trunk lines to do the business of the country between the seaboard and the West—the Vanderbilt, the Garrett and the Pennsylvania—and it is not unreasonable to suppose that it will not be long before there will be a general stiffening up of rates all around. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

THE editor of the Republican may talk about the question as much as he pleases and publish as many old petitions as he pleases, but the fact will remain that the majority of the citizens of Maysville would like to see the depot more centrally located.

The Fuel of the Day.

An Interesting Interview on the Subject.

COAL, COAL OIL, NATURAL GAS.

Professor W. J. McGee, of the United States Survey, Has Something to Say on the Known Deposits of the Earth—Other Dispatches as Telegraphed From the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The reported discovery of rich coal deposits in the Rocky mountains, near the northern border of the United States has revived the interesting question of the probable quantity of fuel deposits in this country. The Post publishes an interview with Professor W. J. McGee, of the United States survey on this subject, in which he says:

The known deposits of coal, coal oil, and natural gas, the fuel of the day are not so great as many people suppose. There are many localities of the United States which are strange to the geological survey. What wealth may be developed in them is very largely unknown, but a calculation of the amount of anthracite coal of the country, and the probable consumption, results in a very well demonstrated conclusion that such deposits will be exhausted within a century, while bituminous coal will not last longer than three or four centuries if there is no more new finds.

"When will the coal oil and natural gas probably be exhausted?"

That is impossible to calculate. We can approximate the amount of deposits of the coal beds very closely, but with oil and gas it is different, as there is no way to tell how much a well will yield. We have only to wait, and we have no warning of the exhaustion of a supply in advance. The pressure forcing out the gas or oil is exactly the same throughout the time it is being worked."

"Is the report of the discovery of oil in the Rockies plausible?"

"It is not at all unlikely, as oil has already been found in that region at very near the altitude of 4,500 feet, which is the figure given in describing the location of the find. But it is rather more likely to be met in a rolling country. The formation of these deposits is very interesting, as you know the rocky strata of the earth on plains run quite level and undulating; while in mountainous regions they are often found very much broken up, sometimes the rocks standing on end or heaved up in a broken mass. Now, the condition that best invites the gas and oil deposits is very readily understood. Where the rocky's strata is undulating it forms great domes, which act as reservoirs for gas, which accumulates there as well as oil. The former, naturally the lighter, is first found, and then often when that is exhausted the oil below seeps up and below that heaviest of three articles comes salt water, so that when an oil well gives up briny fluid it is safe to say its wealth has been practically exhausted, though in some instances there is a second flow for a limited period."

"What will be done when these deposits are exhausted?"

"My opinion is that that emergency will be met by extracting the bituminous matter contained in rocks, and which is found all over the country. It would astonish those who have not given the subject thought to learn the terrible amount of this matter there is. The earth would yield many hundred thousand barrels per square mile, and it is not extravagant to say this amount would sum up to a million barrels per square mile for the United States. At present only a very small portion of it can be extracted chemically, and I must confess that I don't see how it can be extracted on a commercial basis. But it could in some way be done when the demand would warrant it. This, with gas and petroleum, will be the great fuel of the future, and probably eventually the former alone will be the article of consumption."

"Where is the greatest gas region of the United States now located?"

"It is included within 2,600 square miles in Indiana."

"There the rocky strata of the earth forms a great dome, which not only contains but also has an accumulation of oil."

"Where will we get our oil in the future?"

"That is difficult to answer, but the most promising part of the United States, I should say, is found on the western slope of the Appalachian mountains, running from southern Pennsylvania, through West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, eastern Tennessee, into southern Alabama. This is a very broad belt, and I think in the future it will yield enormous quantities of petroleum. There are other isolated belts west of the Missouri river, in the Rocky mountains, which promise very well, though they are much smaller in territory covered."

Whereabouts of Cabinet Officers.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Only two members of the cabinet are now in the city—Secretaries Noble and Rusk. Secretary Blaine is at Bar Harbor. Attorney General Miller, at Deer Park, was joined by Secretary Windom Saturday night, and the secretary of war is at his home in Vermont. Secretary Tracy paid a visit to the navy department Saturday afternoon, and Postmaster General Wanamaker has been in Philadelphia for several days. Secretary Rusk, when he becomes bored with office seekers, hurries to the interior department for relief, and Secretary Noble returns the compliment the first opportunity that presents itself. Secretary Noble will probably leave Washington early in the week for a vacation of several days.

Will Look at the New Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Chief Naval Constructor Wilson, of the navy, will shortly leave on an inspection tour to the Pacific coast, when he will take a look at the new cruisers Charleston and San Francisco, and the new coast defense vessel, all of which are contracted for by the Union Iron works.

SUNDAY IN CINCINNATI.

A Large Number of Arrests, But no Serious Riot Occurs.

CINCINNATI, July 29.—Yesterday passed off without the expected riot over the enforcement of the saloon closing law. Chief Dietrich took the precaution of calling out all available members of the force, the ordinary watch being doubled all day and up to midnight. At every station a large force was kept in reserve, an especially large number being kept at the Bremen street station in readiness in event of an outbreak over the Rhine.

The second relief men, who generally go on duty at 3 p.m., were pressed into service at 7 in the morning, and at 2 p.m. the night squad came on watch, making a total of 400 men on duty during the afternoon and evening.

The saloons were not generally open. Eichler did not open. That is, front doors were not swinging wide, and crowds did not surge in and out of them. This state of affairs was not expected from the prospects of the early morning. Then many saloon keepers threw open their places and allowed all to come in.

But prompt action on the part of the police changed all this. Saloon keepers were arrested as soon as their places were found open. Often their wives took their places. But their wives were also arrested.

Sometimes there was a hitch in the securing of bonds, and the saloon keeper had to occupy a cell for a few hours. All this was decidedly discouraging, and the arrests became fewer and fewer as the day progressed.

Poisoned BY ARSENIC.

A Negro Woman Confesses to Poisoning the Richest Colored Woman in the South.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 29.—Lucy Bedford, aged 50, and Emily Parsons, her niece, both colored, were poisoned by arsenic in their coffee yesterday. Miss Parsons died last night, and Miss Bedford being in a critical condition. Lucy Bedford is probably the richest colored woman in the south, having been given an estate worth $100,000 by the will of her former owner. Four negro servants of Miss Bedford's were arrested on suspicion of the crime.

It is said that on Miss Bedford's death her property is to revert to relatives of her former master. Catharine Small, a negro woman who had formerly been employed as cook, has just confessed that she put arsenic in the coffee in order to kill Gracey Hunter, a negro woman who now cooks for the old woman, and whom Catharine accused of taking her place in their employ. She is now in jail.
